NATIONAL SCHOOL BUS SAFETY WEEK HISTORY

- National School Bus Safety Week was the result of a letter-writing campaign to President Nixon in 1969.
- Founded by Dick Fischer, a former school district transportation director in California, the first NSBSW was held in 1970. In 1975, the National Association for Pupil Transportation (NAPT) was founded.
- The NAPT, along with the National School Transportation Association (NSTA) and National Association of State Directors of Pupil Transportation Services (NASDPT), hosts National Bus Safety Week each year.
