Mission

Dedicated to academic success, Student Support and Health Services offers a wide range of social, emotional, and health resources to help students thrive. We promote attendance and a positive school climate by focusing on the whole child, providing critical support services and removing barriers to learning.

Support Services

Promoting learning by supporting the health and well-being of all students

Challenges

Students who have same sex attractions, who are uncomfortable with their assigned gender, or who identify as lesbian, gay, bisexual or transgender, face enormous social pressures and challenges that affect their school success, health and well-being. As a result, LGBTQ youth are more vulnerable to such issues as:

- School dropout
- At-risk or problematic behavior
- Academic failure
- Parental or familial rejection

In addition, LGBTQ youth may be more vulnerable to mental health problems such as depression, anxiety, substance abuse and suicide. Educators and other professionals also face challenges in providing support to LGBTQ youth, as it is difficult to find resources and to know where to turn when questions arise, particularly in the complex environment of school.

Opportunities

SCUSD's LGBTQ Support Services program offers students, families, school staff and community professionals a confidential, centralized source of information and support regarding issues facing LGBTQ students that attend SCUSD schools, including:

- Information and referral
- Counseling referrals
- Advocacy

SCUSD also convenes a monthly LGBTQ Task Force to address district-wide policy, program and training issues related to supporting LGBTQ students and families and creating a school environment that is welcoming and safe for all.

Resources

Gay Straight Alliances (GSA)

GSA's are student-run clubs which provide a safe place for students to meet, support each other, talk about issues related to sexual orientation and work to end homophobia. GSA's are offered at many SCUSD middle and high schools:
