

APPENDIX 2.10 Model Rosa Parks Response

What was Rosa Parks's life like?

Rosa Parks had a hard life. She lived during Jim Crow laws. Jim Crow laws kept African American people and white people separate. For example, Rosa Parks had to walk to school every day and white children took the bus. Rosa Parks also went to a school that was not as good as the school for white children. She did not get to finish school because she had to take care of her grandmother. Things were not very fair for Rosa Parks.
