SCUSD sponsors Linked Learning high school recruitment fair

Event will showcase district's 19 career pathway options for high school students

November 10, 2014 (Sacramento): Middle school students can explore their career-linked high school options on Thursday (November 13) at SCUSD's fifth annual Linked Learning Pathways Showcase and Recruitment Fair.

"Linked Learning" is the district's signature approach to high school redesign and is aimed at ensuring that every student graduates ready for college and the world of work. Students choose an employment sector that interests them – health and medicine, law and public policy, construction and manufacturing, etc. – and learn professional skills in the classroom while getting a variety of work-based learning experiences such as mentorships and internship opportunities.

SCUSD's lineup of high schools and high school programs includes 19 Linked Learning pathways in such diverse fields as engineering, graphic design, robotics, law enforcement and culinary arts. Students in Linked Learning programs are supported through graduation with counseling and guidance, curriculum resources, highly qualified Career Technical Education (CTE) teachers and connections to local industries that partner with SCUSD schools.

WHEN: 5 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. on Thursday, November 13
