Comment:	Another year and once again we're seeing massive layoffs, cuts to teacher take-home pay, etc. (which will doubtlessly be rescinded). On any given year, this is bad business. This year, it's disastrous. Nationwide teacher shortages are being exacerbated by leadership's total unwillingness to roll up their sleeves, get to the table, and make it happen. I think we can all agree that what you've done hasn't been working; you'd like to be hands off and "trust our people to do their jobs." Which sounds great. Only it's not working. And it hasn't been working for years. It's time to try something else. What is happening is totally destabilizing for our children, and they deserve so much better.
